This language, to which I object and do not approve, represents an unconstitutional alteration of a reappropriation contained in the Executive Budget submission because it changes the reappropriation amount by increasing its value. The Governor's disapproval of language on the basis of its unconstitutionality is not subject to override by the Legislature. See Silver v. Pataki, 4 N.Y.3d 75 (2004) (dismissing challenge by Speaker of the State Assembly to the Governor's disapproval of 55 unconstitutional items added by the Legislature to the 1998-99 budget); 1982 N.Y. This language, to which I object and do not approve, represents an unconstitutional alteration of a reappropriation contained in the Executive Budget submission because it changes the reappropriation amount by increasing its value. The Governor's disapproval of language on the basis of its unconstitutionality is not subject to override by the Legislature. See Silver v. Pataki, 4 N.Y.3d 75 (2004) (dismissing challenge by Speaker of the State Assembly to the Governor's disapproval of 55 unconstitutional items added by the Legislature to the 1998-99 budget); 1982 N.Y. Op. Att'y General 21 (recognizing that the Governor's disapproval of unconstitutional budget language "is not subject to override by the Legislature"). Even a vote by two-thirds of the members of both Houses of the State Legislature cannot transform unconstitutional budgetary language into a law that may be validly executed by responsible state officials. See City Council of N.Y. v. Bloomberg, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 149 (2006) (upholding Mayor Bloomberg's refusal to execute invalid legislation enacted into law over his veto by the New York City Council). Therefore, the amount of the increase is vetoed, but the original amount of the item in the Executive Budget resubmission is retained.
